City Schools Arrange Bus Information Center

A special bus information center for the conveniences of residents in the Harbor and South area whose children will be attending a Los Angeles City school was opened on September 3, it was announced by Raymond Nickerson, city schools transportation director.

The information center is located at Wilmington Junior High school with Dean White, head bus driver for the area, in charge. He may be reached by calling TE 4-5276.

White will be stationed at the Wilmington Junior High school center from Tuesday through Friday for the two-week period preceding the September 16 opening date for the Los Angeles City school.

Information which White will give will relate to areas to be served, bus routes, time schedules, and other general school transportation problems.

He will be able to give information only on school bus transportation. Nickerson emphasized. Public transit line schedules and routes must be secured from the individual firms, he added.

Under Board of Education regulations, transportation is provided for all children who live two or more miles from their elementary school, two and one-half or more miles from their junior high school, and three or more miles from their senior high school.

However, even in these areas, school transportation is not furnished for children in kindergarten classes, Nickerson stressed.

Parents who seek bus transportation information are urged not to call the City Schools' central administrative offices for this information, since their calls will merely have to be referred back to White at the local center.

Schools in this area which will be served by transportation, in accordance with the school system's policy, are:

Elementary schools—Del Amo, 1825 E. 213th st. Torrance; Cabrillo, 732 S. Cabrillo ave. San Pedro; Park Western Place, 1214 Park Western pl.; Gardena, 647 W. Gardena blvd. Gardena; 186th street, 1581 W. 186th St. Gardena; and White Point, 1410 Silivus ave. San Pedro.

Teachers Meet at Asilomar

Presidents of 360 local chapters of California Teachers Association convened in Asilomar recently for a three-day conference to determine methods by which the local groups and the State Association, working together, may improve relationships between the schools and the public.

The seminar, designed to train local presidents, will feature meetings on 35 different subjects with which each local president should be conversant. They range from discussion of methods of planning and conducting meetings to ethical presentation of teacher attitudes to school boards and administrators.

Arthur F. Corey, executive secretary of the CTA, declared that the CTA is planning renewed emphasis upon the professional duties of teachers, including maintenance of high standards, improvement in teacher methods, and self-discipline in the profession.

Robert Rees, director of field service for CTA, was in charge of arrangements. Attending from Torrance were Earl Griffin, Wiseburn faculty association, Maurine B. Pool, vice-president of Torrance education as-
